Anekaant: A Journal of Polysemic Thought is published once a year by Balvant Parekh Centre for General Semantics and Other Human Sciences, Baroda, India. Its objective is to engage with ideas emanating from the discipline of General Semantics, and from other disciplines under the broad rubric of the human sciences. As the human sciences include several areas of thought and their application, the range of the Journal's coverage is both open-ended and inclusive. It provides a forum for a dialogue among both scholars and non-scholars on topics of contemporary relevance that have some bearing on our everyday reality. Articles submitted for possible publication in the Journal must be written in a style devoid of academic jargon so that they are easily intelligible to general readers. It will also have a book-review section, where books related to the areas of the Journal's concerns will be discussed.

Submission Guidelines

We accept manuscripts throughout the year. Manuscripts should be of 3500-5000 words. For research papers, please use the latest MLA style. Author's name should appear on the cover page only. Please email your submissions in MS Word Format and address your queries to the editor (binisajil@gmail.com). Please attach a brief bio-note with the submission. All submissions to the journal will be evaluated by a team of referees. Those which receive favorable comments will be published.
